CAROLINIANS SUE STANDARD OIL CO.

Columbia Oct. 3.—Damage suits against the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, totalling $1,250,000 growing out of the explosion of a lamp in the home of S. D. Derrick of Lexington county several months ago, will come up for trial in the court of general sessions here Wednesday it was announced today. The company is alleged to have sold oil of a high volatility to W. W. Hall, a standard merchant for ordinary kerosene and he in turn sold it to Mr. Derrick.

A lamp was filled with the oil and Mrs. Derrick attempted to light it. The lamp exploded, burning Mrs. Derrick to death, Madeline Williams' daughter of a neighboring family, lost both ears and Mr. Derrick was terribly burned in an effort to save his wife and child. The first suit to be heard will be that on behalf of the Williams girl for $250,000.

DALLAS-SCOTT WEDDING

(Radford News, Radford, Va.)

A very beautiful wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Karnes, Wednesday, Sept. 27, 1922, when their sister, Miss Katherine Waddell Scott, became the bride of Rev. A. E. Dallas, of Rockingham, N. C. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. E. Scott, of Winston-Salem, N. C., father of the bride, and Rev. W. L. Newman, pastor.

The entire lower floor was thrown together and was elaborately decorated with goldenrod, clematis and ferns. As guests arrived they were met at the door by the hostess and ushered into the reception hall where punch was served by Mrs. R. S. Dower, under a beautiful yellow canopy draped with clematis. The guests then assembled in the living room where a musical program was rendered by Mrs. W. B. Fuqua and Mr. E. S. Jones while the bridal procession was forming. "The Serenade by Schubert, and "Love Dream," by Liszt, were beautifully played by Mrs. Fuqua who also accompanied Mr. Jones as he sang "At Dawning" in his most charming manner. Then to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march the bridal procession entered. The ceremony took place in the library, under a white arch covered with clematis, from which was suspended a large wedding bell. On either side of the arch were banked masses of goldenrod and ferns. As the opening bars of the wedding march were sounded, the officiating ministers took their places beneath the arch. Then the bridegroom and his best man, Stuart Scott, of Winston-Salem, N. C., brother of the bride, entered the library from the hall just as the rest of the bridal party descended the stairs and passed through the living room into the library.

First came the maid of honor, Miss Mary Johnson, of Norfolk, who wore orchid taffeta and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Next came little Clifton Karnes, Jr., carrying the ring in the heart of a white rose on a satin pillow. Then came the bride on the arm of her brother-in-law, C. H. Karnes.

The bride's gown was of ivory, bridal-satin, trimmed with pearls, the veil of tulle with a wealth of orange blossoms, her bouquet of white roses and swansinia showered.

The impressive ring ceremony was used, and just as the couple knelt for the benediction Mr. Jones sang "O Perfect Love," which added greatly to the beauty of the ceremony. Then to the joyous strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the guests pressed forward to extend their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Dallas.

The entire company then went into the dining room, where the cutting of the bride's cake and searching for its prophetic contents caused much excitement among the young ladies.

The cake was decorated with a miniature bride and groom standing beneath an arch. The color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the refreshments, cake, cream and mints, which were served by Misses Elsie Selden and Helen Scott.

The bride is the daughter of Rev.
